Green lights for emergency vehicles

The Opticom — an electronic traffic control system which changes traffic lights to green as emergency vehicles approach — will be installed in Granite City within the next two months under a contract approved by the Granite City Council.

The council, acting on a recommendation by Alderman Earl Baker, chairman of the Fire and Water Committee, awarded a contract to Welsbacher Electric Corp. of St. Louis on a low bid of $19,856 to install the equipment at traffic signals at 16 Granite City intersections.

Baker told the council that the contractors told him it will require about three to four weeks to complete designs for the new system, and about four weeks for installation work.

"We are looking toward completion of the project about the latter part of April," Baker said.

Two other bids for the installation work were submitted, one by Rite Electric Co. for $29,946, and the other by R. Dron Electric Co. for $19,942, or only $47 more than the bid by the Welsbacher firm.

Alderman William Dallas at first objected to the award to the Welsbacher company in noting that the Dron firm is a local firm and for the small difference in bid offers would be able to provide quicker maintenance service in the event of a malfunction.

Alderman Ronald Coleman, chairman of the Finance Committee, told the council, "We realize that and we took it into consideration, but the law is firm covering federal revenue sharing expenditures. We cannot deviate in the slightest from low bids."

Purchase of the Opticom equipment on a bid of $33,904, by the 3M Co. of St. Louis, as well as the installation work, is being financed with federal revenue funds.

Intersections at which the emergency system will be installed include 26th and Madison, Niedringhaus and Madison, 27th and Madison, Madison and Nameoki, Lindell and Nameoki, Manley and Nameoki, Pontoon and Nameoki, Johnson and Wabash, Nameoki and Victory, Nameoki and 25th, Nameoki and 23rd, 20th and Edwardsville, 20th and Nameoki, and Johnson.

The Opticom system permits emergency vehicles to activate individual traffic signals up to a third of a mile away without affecting other signals in the Staff members of a consumer information project being conducted by Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville met last week to evaluate the progress of the program.

The project, designed to provide consumer information to low-income people in Madison and St. Clair Counties, is conducted through the Office of Special Programs at SIUE. It is funded through a grant from the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

The consumer assistants met to compare experiences they have had in communities where they have been working, according to Rowena Lutz, project director.

They discussed problems in the field and explored ways in which the program might become even more effective. Emil Jason added. He is assistant vice president for special programs and minority affairs at SIUE.

Meetings are held once a month in each community to disseminate consumer information pertaining to automotive services, insurance policies, management of the clothing dollar, service agencies available to the consumer, credit use and abuse, and food budgeting.

Heads 13,000 Explorers

Bruce Rotter, 19, of Granite City was elected to lead 13,000 Explorers in a three and a half state area Saturday during the Great Central Area Explorer Conference held in Overland Park, Kan., a suburb of Kansas City.

Young Rotter now will give leadership to over 1,200 explorer post presidents in Missouri, Kansas, Iowa and Southern Illinois.

Nearly 300 presidents and delegates from 16 scout councils attended.

Rotter is chairman of the local Cahokia Mound Council Explorer Presidents' Association and president of Explorer Post 10-4, sponsored by Madison Police Unit 110.

Rotter, with 14 voting delegates representing 203 explorers, staged a vigorous campaign against a Webster Groves, Mo., candidate representing the St. Louis Area Council who had 43 voting delegates. The St. Louis Council has 433 explorer posts with a combined membership of over 6,000 explorers.

Bill Weidner of Madison served as Rotter's campaign manager and Shay Davis, 16, of Granite City, a member of Post Nine, sponsored by St. Elizabeth Hospital, gave the nominating speech.

"We had done our homework, prepared campaign signs and literature and went to work to sell our candidate to each voting delegate," Weidner said.

"We had the help of the Piasa Bird Council that takes in the northern half of Madison County. The Piasa members had about 20 votes and were real campaigners."

Rotter is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Rotter, 2717 Washington Ave., and a pre-

Progressive era in state

(16th of a Bicentennial year Press-Record series)
Between the Spanish-American War and World War I, Illinois and the nation witnessed an unparalleled flurry of reform—resulting in a host of legislation dealing with difficult political, economic and social questions.

The period is referred to as the Progressive Era, noted in all textbooks as a watershed of modern-day liberalism. The questions which occur are: Why did this happen when it did? And who was responsible for it?

At the turn of the century, Illinoisans were faced with three revolutionary problems:

industrialization, immigration and urbanization.

Rapid industrialization in the late 19th century had opened a major gap between the rich and the poor, stimulated the boom-and-bust business cycle, triggered the exploitation of resources and child labor, and reduced farm income.

Massive immigration convinced Illinoisans that they were no longer a homogeneous society primarily of British origin, espousing some form of Protestant religion, and entertaining similar notions of manners and morals.

MOTHER MARY WILLIAM

SISTER ANN

St. Elizabeth Hospital pastoral care emphasis

Mother Mary William, who is retiring from a five-year term as general consultant in Rome, and Sister Ann, a staff nurse on the hospital's psychiatric unit for the past one and one-half years, have joined the pastoral care department at St. Elizabeth Hospital.

Mother Mary William taught in elementary and secondary schools from 1930 to 1952. During that time span, she received her master's degree in social studies from Saint Louis University in 1945.

In 1952, she was appointed chief administrator at St. Elizabeth Hospital. In 1956, Mother Mary William was elected assistant provincial and in 1960 she was elected provincial superior of the community. She served as provincial superior until her selection as general consultant in 1970.

Sister Ann is a 1971 graduate of Marillac College in St. Louis. Before coming to St. Elizabeth, she served as a staff nurse in the surgical unit at Normandy Osteopathic Hospital. Sister Ann also taught in elementary schools in the St. Louis area and in the Jefferson City diocese.

Sister Ann explains that the pastoral care department is an on-going and developing service concerned with the spiritual welfare of the patient, the patient's family and the hospital staff.

Pastoral care also serves as the contact department for area ministers, she said, adding, "Our department contributes to the St. Elizabeth Hospital philosophy, which is total patient care."

Pastoral care services are multi-faceted, she said, including visiting patients and their families and providing for the patient's spiritual aspirations.

A relatively new concept in hospitals, pastoral care is experiencing growing public awareness.

"Keeping the total patient care philosophy in mind, and realizing the shortage of Sisters on each floor, a department such as pastoral care assures the availability of a Sister for concentration on the patient's spiritual needs," Sister Ann concluded.

Employment program for seniors gets more funds

Expansion of the Senior Community Service Employment program which is expected to double the number of jobs in the Illinois-Missouri area, which includes seven counties in this region, was announced Friday.

The project, which has been implemented by the National Retired Teachers Association and the American Association of Retired Persons, has received a grant from the National Administration on Aging which will benefit elderly persons this year by approximately $800,000.

Robert J. Swift, who initiated the project in this area in 1974, said that due to the expansion, Richard Gerhart has been appointed project director for the seven-county area in Illinois and James Hoefner as the project director for the St. Louis Area.

The program is presently in 53 different locations in the United States. Swift has been appointed supervisor over nine project sites in California, Washington, Oregon, Nevada, New Mexico and Texas.

Senior citizens, 55 years and older, with limited incomes and interested in this program, may contact Gerhart's office at 1003 North Main St., Edwardsville, Ill. or call (618) 656-9711.

St. Louis residents may contact Hoefner, at the Mayor's VIP Center for Senior Citizens, Broadway and Delmar Boulevard, or call (314) 621-5600.

Community business and service organizations interested in employing senior citizens were asked to contact the project directors.

ENERGY TECHNOLOGY was explained to high school students during an inspection of Illinois Power Co. facilities as an observance of Edison Science and POLE DIGGER mounted on a truck that is capable of setting 90-foot utility poles is explained to area high school students by Bill Eads, electric distribution superintendent of Illinois Power Co., during a tour of the company's facilities in observance of Edison Science and Engineering Youth Day.

Students view energy facilities

Twenty-one students and three teachers observed Edison Science and Engineering Youth Day by touring Illinois Power Co. facilities in this area.

Purpose of the day was to stimulate increased awareness and interest in science, engineering and other technical careers.

Illinois Power Co. invited two of the top students from each high school in the county. The students selected were interested in observing the practical application of science and engineering technology.

Students were from Granite City South, Granite City North, Madison, Venice, Brooklyn, Collinsville, Wood River, Roxana, Bethalto and Worden. Students attending from this area were:

Granite City South, Michael Hayes and Mary Beatty; Granite City North, Jon Newcomb and Steve Szeleka; Madison, Mark Liszewski and Ricky Walker; Brooklyn, Denise Thomas and Leroy Matthews; Venice, Calvin Butts, science and math instructor, James Crowder and James Turner.

The tour included seeing an in-line computerized Customer Information System at the Illinois Power Co. office.

A tour of the service unit at 22nd and Adams Street included the electric and gas departments, engineering department and the storeroom operations. The students were shown the 22nd Street substation and a gas regulator station at 22nd and Adams.

In the electric department they toured the meter shop, tool equipment room and saw a pole digger mounted on a truck which is capable of setting 90 foot poles.

In the afternoon the students were allowed to tour Illinois Power Company's Wood River power plant and observe the process of generating electricity from the beginning, where coal is brought into the plant, to the end where large generators contribute to the power requirements for more than 470,000 industrial, farm, commercial and residential customers.

Carl Mathias, manager of the Granite City Service Area, spoke to the group about the energy situation and projections for energy of the future.

Strubberg held to grand jury

Steve Strubberg, 19, who is charged with murdering Mrs. Pearl Elizabeth Giffin, 78, and burglarizing her home at 2107 Kirkpatrick Homes Feb. 6, had a preliminary hearing on the charges Friday and was bound over to a Madison County grand jury.

A preliminary hearing is held at the request of defense attorneys to have a judge review the evidence and determine if there is sufficient cause to take the case to a grand jury and seek an indictment.

A date for the grand jury to hear the case has not been set. In other court action on the case, two juveniles who were arrested and have been held at the Madison County Juvenile Detention Home since the date of the murder, had their hearing postponed late last week and another hearing date is to be set.

Granite City juvenile authorities have applied to the juvenile courts to certify the two boys, ages 14 and 15, to stand trial as adults.

The hearing was postponed at the request of the attorneys for the boys.

Mrs. Giffin was found dead in her bed early the morning of Feb. 6. There were signs the apartment had been burglarized and Mrs. Giffin had been killed by a blow to her head, possibly caused by a club.

Police allege items stolen from her home were found in the Kirkpatrick Homes apartment where Strubberg was staying with a relative and Mrs. Giffin's purse was found on the roof over that apartment.

Indict 2 in marijuana theft

A Madison County grand jury has indicted Perry L. Dickerman, 17, of the 4700 block of Warnock Ave., and Buford Eugene Mitchell of Menard

State Prison on a charge of burglary against each.

It is alleged the two, while prisoners at the Madison County Jail at Edwardsville, broke into an evidence storage room at the jail and removed about 158 pounds of marijuana. Dickerman's bond was set at $10,000 and he was released. Mitchell's bond was set at $5,000.

The grand jury also indicted Gem Super Drugs, also doing business as Gem Rexall Drugs, Collinsville, on two felony counts of theft for allegedly receiving public aid checks for drugs, when the company was not entitled to the payments. Count one alleges a $185 check from public aid was accepted Aug. 8, 1975, and the second count alleges the company accepted a $394 check Nov. 1, 1973.

Gets prison term in robbery case

Terry Smith, 24, of the 800 block of Bend Road, was sentenced in Madison County Circuit Court Friday to serve a term of four years to four years and six months in prison for armed robbery.

He and two co-defendants were arrested July 23, after their auto went out of control at Route 111 and Hartford-South Roxana Road and went into a ditch after a man was robbed at gunpoint.

A co-defendant, Rick McCutcher, 23, of the same block, was sentenced last month to serve five years probation for attempted robbery in connection with the same evening's incidents. A young woman who also had been charged was released after charges were dismissed.

The sentence was pronounced by Circuit Judge Moses Harrison II.

Judge Harrison also has pronounced three concurrent prison sentences for Alan Hampton, 27, of the 2200 block of Grand Ave., for unlawful delivery of a controlled substance, unlawful possession of a controlled substance and attempted burglary, all in separate cases.

The concurrent sentences included two to six years for delivery of LSD in connection with a series of arrests made by the Illinois Bureau of Investigation in September following undercover investigations.

The other sentences include one to three years in prison for possession of a controlled substance when police alleged finding heroine and amphetamine sulphate in his home Jan. 22, the result of a search warrant being executed by police and agents of the Charge two in theft case

Bruce W. Tomlinson, 18, of 2116 Miracle Ave., and David King, 17, of 1810 rear Bloom St., Madison, were arrested Thursday night and charged with a felony count of theft against each.

A 16-year-old boy also faces juvenile court action in connection with the same case. Officers alleged stopping Tomlinson's auto at Madison Avenue and Nameoki Road at 5:05 p.m. Thursday and finding a tire and a magnesium wheel on the rear floorboard.

Police say they obtained permission to search the car's trunk and found three more tires and wheels. They released the driver and the two passengers, pending further investigation.

Later, Granite City and Madison officers went to King's home and alleged finding the stolen car to a field north of Mitchell where the three allegedly removed the tires and wheels and abandoned the car.

Tomlinson also was charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor and King and the juvenile boy were charged with curfew violations.

Fraud in clinic services for Medicaid patients in Illinois—U. S. Senate

By JAMES CARY
Press-Record Washington Bureau Chief

A U. S. Senate subcommittee charged last week that a six-month investigation has produced evidence of widespread fraud and rampant abuse in clinical laboratory services provided Medicaid and Medicare patients in Illinois. The staff report, prepared for the Long Term Care Subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Aging, said 21 medical laboratories and 50 medical clinics in Illinois had been involved in the check and violators and civil action to recover federal funds inappropriately paid.

The subcommittee said the national loss in such cases could be at least $45 million of the $23 million in payments to clinical laboratories for Medicare and Medicaid testing.

The 45-page report was released by the subcommittee chairman, Sen. Frank Moss, D-Utah, at a hearing at which some subcommittee on Aging, investigators, and some of the key witnesses, appeared and reported their conclusions.

"The average kickback to physicians or medical center owners in Illinois was 30 percent of the monthly total lab received for performing tests for Medicaid patients," Moss noted in an opening statement.

"Kickbacks took several forms, including cash, furnishing supplies, business machines, care or other gratuities, as well as paying part of a physician's payroll expenses. Most commonly, it involved the supposed rental of a small space in a medical clinic."

Moss said the report concluded that a 1972 law passed by Congress prohibiting kickbacks, mandating a $10,000 fine and a year in jail upon conviction, was not being enforced.

Vai J. Halamandaris, associate counsel of the Senate Special Committee on Aging, testified that at Moss' request the subcommittee staff had launched the investigation of the operation of independent clinical laboratories handling Medicaid and Medicare testing.

He said one finding was that a comparatively few labs control most of the Medicaid business. In Illinois, he said, 26 labs received over 90 percent of Medicaid funds paid to clinical laboratories.

He said the staff concluded that an over-generous fee schedule set in 1967 for Medicaid lab tests was at the root of the problem. Most testing was done manually then. Now it is done by machines.

The predominant technique is to charge for tests that are not authorized by the physician," Halamandaris said. "Another common abuse is billing Medicaid for component parts of tests that should be run and paid for as a panel."

"Perhaps the most serious problem was charging Medicaid patients rates two and three times what private patients are charged."

"If laboratories in Illinois charged Medicaid patients what they charge private paying patients, there would be an estimated saving to the state of 58 percent of the present payment for lab services."

He said the staff also found that under current reimbursement practices:

- (1) Any laboratory so inclined can bill Medicaid for tests on a patient a doctor has never seen,
- (2) for blood never drawn,
- (3) for tests never performed,
- (4) at a rate exceeding 100 times cost and
- (5) twice the prevailing rate to private patients.

(6) In so doing, laboratories could violate laws and regulations with nearly absolute assurance that they would not be caught, he alleged. The report recalled testimony provided by Edmond D. Morgan, executive secretary of the Illinois Clinical Laboratory Association, before the subcommittee last Sept. 26.

At that time, Morgan estimated $10 million to $12 million annually was being siphoned out of the health care dollar in Illinois through padding of laboratory bills.

As a result of Morgan's appearance, the committee received a complaint from Dr. Herbert Meyer, a Chicago physician, that he had been offered a substantial kickback by a clinical lab.

Staff investigator William Recktenwald visited Dr. Meyer and listened in from a closet in an adjacent room, while the doctor again quizzed a representative of the lab he said had made the kickback offer.

Recktenwald said he heard "Mr. A" offer Dr. Meyer a return of 30 per cent of each month's gross billings submitted to the Illinois Department of Public Aid (Medicaid).

The report said "Mr. A" said the kickback could be paid either as a rental of space in the physician's office, or could be disguised as payment toward the salary of one of the physician's employees.

Satisfied that what was being offered was clearly illegal, the committee investigators decided to probe further by establishing a storefront clinic, with the help of two cooperating physicians, and the aid of the Better Government Association of Chicago, a nonpartisan civic organization that has cooperation with the Committee on Aging for six years.

The small storefront was rented at 1520 W. Morse in the Rogers Park area of Chicago.

Over the next three weeks, business representatives from more than 12 laboratories—doing more than 65 per cent of the Medicaid business in the state of Illinois—visited the clinic.

All but one offered some form of inducement or kickback if the clinic would steer Medicaid and Medicare tests to their lab, it is alleged.

Still, another witness last week, Douglas Longhini of the Chicago Better Government Association, told of his experiences in contacting 13 laboratories for a storefront clinic.

He said 11 of the 13 offered the doctors a kickback.

"Although the percentages varied," Longhini said, "the method of payment was consistent. Each offered... to rent space at our storefront offices in Rogers Park."

"The laboratories only required enough space to accommodate a laboratory technician to draw blood. This space could literally be two square feet—enough space for a blood drawing chair—or one small room within the clinic."

"The number of square feet utilized would not increase if the volume of business increased. However, the amount of rent paid would..."

The other states checked in the subcommittee's investigation were New Jersey, California, Pennsylvania and New York.

The California section of the report said Los Angeles City Attorney Butte Pine charged in 1975 that there were $150,000 in illegal kickbacks involving 100 physicians in the San Fernando area.

The district attorney of Los Angeles County also filed a consumer protection action in the form of an antitrust suit, accusing two laboratories and a number of physicians with illegal price fixing.

In San Diego, the district attorney filed antitrust suits against Central Diagnostic Laboratory and National Health Laboratories.

$244,307 grant for Cahokia Mounds Park

Cong. Melvin Price, D-23rd Ill.) announced Friday a $244,307 grant has been approved by the National Park Service, U.S. Department of Interior, to assist in the preservation of Cahokia Mounds Park.

Cong. Price said the funds are part of a matching grant program under the Historic Preservation Act and will be used to acquire 384.91 acres of the Cahokia Mounds site.

Cahokia Mounds is the largest prehistoric site in the United States and represents the closest the American Indian came to urban living, Price said.

A $243,708 grant from the State Department of Conservation already has been appropriated for the project.

of Irish, Germans, Scandinavians, Poles, Bohemians, Russians, Jews, Italians and Orientals in their midst whose entire way of life deviated from the established norm and led to routine clashes.

Finally, the rapid growth of cities produced a sudden population balance between urban and rural areas, Chicago and Downstate, and forced each side to advance its cause at the expense of the other.

The cities fought to cope with staggering problems of crime, transportation and housing while the countryside struggled to maintain its privileges against urban aggressions.

No Illinoisian was free from the effects of these revolutionary developments, powerful enough to unite previous political enemies.

From time to time the Progressive coalition included farmers who saw an opportunity to fulfill the 19th Century programs of the Grangers, Greenbackers and Populists.

It also included such old-stock, economically secure, college-educated individuals as Jane Addams, seeking to correct some of the evils of the time.

Further, the urban newstock wage earner represented by the machine politician rallied occasionally to the cause of reform and provided votes and support for important issues.

There was even substantial business presence in the coalition supporting such supposedly anti-business measures as the Federal Trade Commission and the Clayton Anti-Trust Act.

In Illinois, the small Socialist contingent in the General Assembly regularly rallied to Progressive legislation.

It seemed that the Granite City storekeeper, the Carbondale miner, the Chicago saloonkeeper, the Bloomington lawyer and the Peoria businessman had a common cause as consumers of wealth.

For the revolutionary developments of the era meant declining prices and slipping prestige to the farmer, long hours at low wages to the factory worker, a crisis of status and disgust at the style of the newly rich citizens on the part of the state's traditional gentry, and a general inability to cope with the circumstances of a new environment.

Together, these Illinoisians decided that an enlarged government was the answer, and politics became increasingly relevant to life.

Seemingly strange partnerships formed throughout the state, supporting particular measures for different reasons and without a broad-gauged agreement on principle.

In the realm of economics, addition of the federal income tax amendment found general support at all but the highest levels of society.

It was an attempt to ensure that the wealthy bear their fair share of the burden of government, protect them against the threat of a bill to establish equitable assessment of taxes in Illinois was first introduced by Gov. Edward F. Dunne, an Irish Catholic, former mayor of Chicago, representing the state's urban new-stock citizen.

It was finally enacted during the subsequent administration of Republican Frank Lowden—a more typical, middle-class progressive.

In the area of labor and welfare, Illinois adopted a host of legislation including old-age pensions, child labor measures, industrial codes, women's hours and wage regulations, and employer's liability laws.

Support for these measures came from nearly all elements of Illinois society.

Surprisingly, the struggle for the direct election of senators was supported not only by middle-income good-government reformers, but also by urban machine politicians such as Roger Sullivan and Governor Dunne.

Legislation on issues involving manners, morals and religion was not as easily won. A bitter struggle occurred over the legalization of professional boxing, a cause supported by recent immigrants and opposed by native, old-stock Illinoisians.

While the national prohibition amendment and immigration restriction won support, they divided the state clearly on ethnic lines.

These battles together with the coming of war broke the coalition and signaled the end of the Progressive Era.

During its height, pragmatic alliances grew up to support individual pieces of legislation. The guiding facts seemed to be that most Illinoisians felt government at all levels should play a more active role in their lives, protect them against the growing strength of private economic groups, and be made more responsible to the people.

There was no general agreement on the specific nature of government's new role, however, or how it was to be made more accountable. Those questions remain as perpetual puzzles.

member must be elected in the April 10 balloting. There must be at least two rural board members at all times. Harold Davis, who does not run this year, is from the rural area. Therefore one rural member must be elected this year to provide the two required members from rural areas.

Venice board terms that expire this year are those of Richard Bailey, now board secretary, and Mrs. Jackie Leatherman. Other members of the Venice board who do not run this year are Jack Tolliver, president; Elmer Taylor, William Feeble, John Boushard and Charles Burger Jr.

Madison District 12 is the only Quad-City area district that will elect three members in the April 10 balloting. Terms expiring include those of Chester McManaway, board secretary, Harold Fisk, president, and Donald Boyer. The four Madison board members who do not run this year are Willie Walker, Frank Hayes, Elvers Johnson and David Miskelly.

Petitions of candidacy are available at the board offices of all school districts.

Terms expiring in the BAC district are those of Ted Gundlach and Milton Smith, both of Belleville. The seats are at large, meaning that anyone in the Belleville Area College district may apply. The district includes the Quad-City area.

Petitions may be obtained at the present time from Mrs. Ruthie M. Kombrink, board secretary, at the Belleville Area College offices, 2500 Carlyle Road, Belleville, during business hours, 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays.

Holdover board members are Curt Eckert, Edwin E. O'Malley, and Martha L. Sauer, all of Belleville; John Becker of Sparta and Mearl J. Justus of Cahokia.

In Granite City, candidates may begin filing at 8:30 a.m. on Wednesday. Board Secretary Harold Davis will be on hand at the board office from 8:30 a.m.

Scholarships for 1976 being planned

At a special meeting last week of the Granite City Scholarship Foundation in the city of St. Louis, the principal of Granite City High School, President William W. Bright appointed the following board members to serve on committees for 1976: Screening Committee—Robert Robles, chairman, and Omar Ronk and Steve Fitzgerald.

Financial Committee—Ronk, chairman, and John McDonald and Fitzgerald.

Application Distribution Committee—Norman Garrett, chairman, and Betty Romann.

Presentation Committee—Helen Velloff, chairman, and Peggy Solberger.

Nominating Committee—Peggy Solberger, chairman, and Miss Mary Frances Lynch.

Also approved by the board was the appointment of Robles of the Mexican Honorary Commission as vice president of the Foundation, succeeding Jack Moser of Granite City Steel. Moser has been transferred from the Granite City plant.

Bright told the board that applications for 1976 scholarships are due to the Granite City High schools by April 1. Interested students must have applications completed and mailed to Robert Robles, postmarked no later than April 30.

Robles' address is R.R. 2, Box 7125, Granite City 62040.

"All qualified students are encouraged to apply for our scholarships this year. Scholarships are awarded on the basis of financial need and student's scholastic record," Bright said.

"Special emphasis is being given to the fact that students interested in a vocational career are also eligible for scholarships if they attend an accredited college that offers such a program. Several colleges offering programs in this area are Belleville Area College, Lewis and Clark College and STU at Carbondale.

"The board is currently soliciting funds from all interested persons or organizations; $500 scholarships will be awarded in May at both high schools.

"Contributions of any amount are welcome. Please send checks to the Granite City Scholarship Foundation, Inc., c/o Mr. Robert Spengler, 3666 Warrick Lane, Granite City 62040."

Penrod said he left his keys in his car's ignition when he went inside the store for a moment. A woman left just before he did and got into his car, driving away, he reported.

A warrant for Miss Powderly's arrest was obtained yesterday and she was taken to the Granite City Jail at 5:30 p.m. yesterday.

Fugitive

Madison authorities said police also arrested Cynthia Cole, 23, of 913 Madison Ave., although she was not at the apartment at the time the officers surrounded the building in their effort to arrest Biggs.

She was charged with concealing and aiding a fugitive, failure to possess a firearms identification card and theft by possession.

The latter charge resulted when police found a set of license plates in the apartment. Authorities said the plates had been stolen in Madison.

A .22-caliber pistol and several boxes of ammunition also were found in the apartment, it was alleged.

Detective Thomas Volokiet of the Madison Police Department said the raid on the apartment at 913 Madison was arranged after Madison authorities received a tip through the Granite City detectives that Biggs could be found at the apartment.

The possibility of danger in making the arrest was believed to exist.

The officers were armed with a warrant charging assault with intent to kill. It was issued by Berkeley authorities.

Police covered the front and rear of the building after Madison Detective Paul Bargiel telephoned the Cole apartment. Police said the phone was answered by a man who answered "yes," when Bargiel asked him if "Tony" was there.

Officers unlocked the door with a key obtained from the building owner, and called out for Biggs to surrender. There was no response, and police searched the apartment room by room.

Officers then went to the basement and called Biggs' name again.

Assuming that he was hiding there, they tossed a tear gas grenade into the basement. Biggs then came up the steps.

New community story steel and brick building will face East 23rd Street about 40 feet from the sidewalk. A parking lot will be behind the structure, and beyond the parking lot will be an outdoor basketball court and baseball diamond.

Separate entrances will permit varied programs to be operated simultaneously at the community center.

From west to east, the building will contain a chapel, an administrative office-welfare counseling area, a conference room at the front and craft room at the back, then a recreation room (front) and kitchen (back) and, at the eastern end, a multi-purpose room or "mini gymnasium."

The chapel will serve as the new location for Salvation Army religious services, and an administrative-welfare office will be the site of the local Corps' service work. Both functions have been located at the present site, 19th Street and Grand Avenue, which will be closed after the new building is in operation.

Plans call for the East 23rd Street building to be completed in early summer. G. H. Sternberg is the contractor.

The recreation room of the new structure will include billiard tables. There will be a bar in the craft room, which will be the site of ceramics and other craft hobbies of interest to women.

Senior citizen luncheon gatherings will be continued, and the youth recreation program will be increased in scope.

Outdoor recreation on the Salvation Army's four-acre tract will include not only baseball and basketball but also such sports as soccer and field hockey. Capt. Michael Tompkins, Corps commander, and Brigadier William H. Roberts, Divisional commander, said Friday.

Indoor recreation at the multi-purpose room is to include wrestling, trampolines, events, tumbling and possibly ballet.

The existing SA headquarters building in the Downtown area not only is aging, unattractive and small but also is so structured that it has been difficult to provide supervision for several activities to proceed simultaneously, Corps officials say.

The new building is designed to solve such problems and allow not only the present members to be served more efficiently but also additional participants to be included, it was explained.

$1,189 BURGLARY
Items valued at more than $1,100 were stolen during a burglary at the home of Thomas Cronquist, 3400 Morrison Road, between 7 p.m. and 10 p.m. Saturday, it was reported. A doorknob was twisted off to enter the house. Thieves were seen taking to the car a television, a cigar box containing change, some Chinese coins, a calculator, a camera and lens and a portable radio.

BROTHERS MEET AGAIN after 39 years separation, James Alfred Wimberly, left, and his brother, Richard Rainey, separated 39 years ago when they were 8 and 9, respectively, have spent the past three weeks in Granite City getting reacquainted.

Brothers reunited after 39 years

After 39 years, two orphaned brothers have been reunited in Granite City.

Richard Rainey, 58, of 718 Twenty-eighth St., saw his brother, James Alfred Wimberly, 57, of Tennessee, for the first time in 39 years and they have been fishing, visiting and enjoying each other's company the past three weeks.

The brothers as infants lived at the Children's Society Home of Nashville, Tenn.

The John William Wimberly family adopted James when he was one and a half years old.

The Wimberly neighbors, the Taylor Boyd family, thought the two boys should grow up together, so they brought Richard home with them, but Mr. Boyd died before a formal adoption could be completed.

The two boys were raised near each other until ages 8 and 9. The Wimberly family moved in 1937.

In 1939, James joined the Army and Richard, who was living in Arkansas, moved to Illinois.

Richard learned at age 16 that he had not been legally adopted and also learned from a county clerk that his real name was Rainey. He then began using that name.

Richard moved to Granite City in 1948.

In 1956, a cousin wrote Richard here and sent him a picture from the Nashville Banner of some people who she believed included Richard's mother that had adopted a blind girl.

Rainey went to Ringo, Ga., and found his mother that year, but she had no idea where his brother was.

Wimberly, retiring from the Army last year, went back to Tennessee to locate his brother and found a lady who knew one of Richard's sons.

The son phoned his dad in Granite City and Richard phoned his brother James.

"All the time I was in the Army I would get some word from someone about my brother, but I was always too late by a couple of years or it was wrong information," Wimberly said.

Now that the two are together, they are planning a family reunion this summer in Granite City. Together, they have six children and 18 grandchildren.

"Since I am retired from the Army and now know where my kin are, I am going to spend a lot of time visiting them and I am going to be doing a lot of fishing with Richard here and in Tennessee."

"He's retired from the state and we're going to enjoy life and make up for lost time," Wimberly concluded.

Madison school board seeks prices on building projects

The Madison Board of Education, at its regular meeting Thursday evening, gave permission to Superintendent of Schools John Palchett and the administration to seek prices on two planned construction projects.

Prices are to be sought on materials and labor for putting a canopy over the walkway between the new addition to Madison High School and the cafeteria, and for enclosing the school district's garage to provide additional storage space.

Palchett also was requested to seek prices for a program of computerizing class and teacher scheduling for the next school year.

The board established a rate of pay for election judges and custodians for the upcoming school election at $20 each for election day. They also granted permission to Belleville Area College to use the same polling places and judges to conduct the

Payments to utility regulators alleged

By EDWARD NEILAN
Press-Record

Washington Bureau
State public utility regulators in Illinois were recipients of gifts ranging from $200 to $2,000 from 1970 to 1972, a Houston-based firm said voluntarily last week in admitting "apparently improper practices."

Tenneco Inc., a conglomerate, told the Securities and Exchange Commission in a report that it paid $500,000 to a single foreign country for "protection of employees" and that it maintained a fund for domestic political contributions.

It was from this fund that the firm made payments to state public utility regulators in Illinois and other states and to a judge who decided a labor case in Louisiana, the report related.

The one paragraph referring to Illinois in the six-page report said:

"Beginning prior to 1970 and continuing until August 1972, it is reported that cash payments ranging from $200 to $2,000 were given on several occasions by the president of a subsidiary, Midwestern Gas Transmission Co., to state public utility chairmen in Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky and Wisconsin. The report, which was made available to reporters at the SEC headquarters on Capitol Hill, was prepared by the Houston law firm of Baker and Botts after consultation and review of accounts by the accounting firm of Arthur Andersen and Co.

firm proposes to turn over to the Internal Revenue Service the relevant information and to amend its tax returns where appropriate.

The report, in the form of an amendment to earlier information it had furnished the SEC, was presented voluntarily in the midst of similar acknowledgments by a number of other American companies, and while the political fallout from reported overseas bribes paid by Lockheed Aircraft continues in several countries.

The SEC's new chairman, Roderick M. Hills, has said that the agency is preparing guidelines that will be issued soon, telling businesses what they must disclose to satisfy securities laws.

The SEC has indicated that it might not require as full disclosure—for instance, the names of foreign bribe recipients—if companies will voluntarily report improper payments.

Tenneco's business is with natural gas pipelines, chemicals, paperboard products, land development, auto parts and shipbuilding.

Board chairman and president is N. W. Freeman. The report, which was made available to reporters at the SEC headquarters on Capitol Hill, was prepared by the Houston law firm of Baker and Botts after consultation and review of accounts by the accounting firm of Arthur Andersen and Co.

Youth citizenship award to Wilkins

George T. Wilkins III, 18, son of Dr. and Mrs. George T. Wilkins Jr. of Granite City, will be the first place recipient today of the Soroptimist Club's Youth Citizenship Award.

He will receive a $200 savings bond at the group's 6:30 p.m. dinner, at Tony's Restaurant, Belleville.

He was selected from among 165 entries in Madison and St. Clair Counties.

The award was based on his answers to three essay questions—pertaining to citizenship in the community and the world and his personal evaluation of citizenship.

Participation in school activities also was taken into consideration.

Wilkins' essay answers have been submitted to a regional contest, the winner of which will receive $1,000.

A senior at Granite City High School South, he is active in drama and was a member of the homecoming court.

He is treasurer of the Speech and Theater Club and a member of the Social Studies Club.

He is on the individual events team for speech tournaments and is a member of the National Forensic and National Thespians societies.

Wilkins announces South football games for the school and handles sports announcements each morning over the school public address system.

The first student in Granite City to win the Soroptimist award, he plans to enter Westminster College, Fulton, Mo., this fall.

GEORGE T. WILKINS III

Four students from Granite City have earned grades qualifying them for the dean's list at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale for the fall semester.

Larry A. Kessler, 1612 Venice Ave., achieved a perfect 4.0 average to qualify.

Others on the list include Michael Francis, 2539 Edison Ave., Patricia Mayfield, 2840 Fortune Drive, and Kathy A. Ritchie, 3240 Carlson Ave.

Warriors sparkle but Red Devil defense turns the tide, 68-54

WARRIOR FIELD GOAL. John Slay (52) of GCHS South scores a two-point layup for his team against Venice High School on Thursday night in the Memorial Gymnasium. Left to right are South's Frank Holmes (20), Venice's Larry Arnold (45), Warrior Jim Nolan (50) and Red Devil James Crowder, trying to block the scoring play.

The Warriors of GCHS South played perhaps their finest basketball game of the season Thursday night in the Granite City Memorial Gymnasium. A sprinkling of South High fans on hand to witness the contest against the Venice Red Devils saw the visitors gain a 68-54 victory.

Coach Bryan Wilkinson's cagers rose to the occasion against the defending state Class A champions, but eventually lost to Venice's pressure defense, which was instrumental in forcing 18 Warrior turnovers to the visitors' seven.

After a 10-10 first period deadlock, Venice led 33-24 and 47-30 at the quarters.

The Red Devils were prodded throughout the contest by a hustling, win-hungry Warrior squad until the Red Devils pulled away by connecting for three baskets and two foul shots in the waning minutes of play. Venice claimed its 20th straight victory and has a 22-1 record going into the Freeburg regional tournament. South is now 3-19.

There were repeated cheers from South's cheerleaders and fans, who were determined to shout louder than the Venice rosters seated across the court. South controlled the boards on rebounds, 11-5, in the first period and matched Venice basket for basket, hitting on five of 12 to the Red Devils' five of 15 field goal attempts.

The Warriors stayed within striking distance throughout most of the second period and trailed by only a basket, 24-22, with 1:35 remaining in the half. A rally by Venice brought four quick goals and a charity toss while South players found their mark on only one field goal in eight attempts.

Starting the third quarter, the Warriors began hitting 20-foot shots. They were 50 per cent from the field, seven of 12, but Venice shot 37 per cent, six of 16, to stay eight points ahead going into the final quarter.

Coach Richard Essington sent his Red Devils into fourth-quarter action with a man-to-man defense. Venice had played a zone defense for three quarters.

Warrior ballhandler Frank Holmes was forced to use valuable time attempting to bring the ball downcourt with two Venice defenders blocking his path. The Red Devils meanwhile went to the foul line six times, sinking five of the shots.

Venice went ahead by 11 points when Larrick Arnold picked up three points, drawing a foul throw while making a basket.

South's Jim Nolan retaliated by making South's only three-point shot of the quarter for a 52-43 score.

The Warriors threatened several times to pull even with the Red Devils. Once, with 3:36 left to play, baskets by Nolan, John Slay and Mike McFadden left the Warriors trailing by six, 56-50.

applied extra-strong defensive pressure on the Warriors, forcing three turnovers and converting them into baskets and then gaining two points on fouls.

Nolan garnered the last points of the game on a field goal with four seconds to play. Venice set the pace from the field, 30-25, and on charity shots, 8-4, and recovered more rebounds, 28-24. Although 20 players fouled out, Venice committed 12 fouls and South 11.

Four Red Devils provided double-figure scoring — Turner 16, Reggie Gardner 15, Jaffee Woolfork 14 and James Crowder 12. Arnold had nine points and Ron Salmond two.

For the Warriors, Nolan scored 19 points, Holmes 10, Rick Fancher nine and Slay and McFadden, eight each.

Venice plays tonight, Madison tomorrow in Freeburg tournament

The fifth annual Illinois High School Association Class A boys' basketball state tournament series opens tonight at 64 statewide sites, including Freeburg, where the defending state champion Venice Red Devils have top seeding and Madison's Trojans are seeded second.

Venice, victor of the last three regional championship games, opens the action at Freeburg tonight in a seven o'clock contest with East St. Louis Assumption, a team Venice has defeated 90-53 in regular season play. Assumption's Pioneers have a 1-1 record.

The Red Devils own a 22-1 record and have won 20 straight contests since losing a one-point decision to East St. Louis Lincoln in December.

A second contest tonight, at 8:30, pits Belleville St. Henry Prep against Columbia.

Madison, with a 22-2 mark and 14 straight wins, is slated to clash with Dupu at 7 p.m. tomorrow, but a teachers' strike at Dupu High School might give the Trojans a free ride into the semifinals.

Freeburg and Lovejoy of Brookline meet in an 8:30 p.m. contest tomorrow.

Tonight's victors will play at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, and tomorrow's winners will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in semifinal games.

The regional championship will be decided Friday in a 7:30 p.m. contest, with the victor advancing to sectional competition at Vandalia starting March 2.

The Vandalia sectional titlist will go on to super-sectional action at Charleston on March 9 in an attempt to earn a berth in the state "elite eight" finals March 12-13 at the University of Illinois Assembly Hall, Champaign.

Coach Richard Essington's Red Devils and Coach Larry Graham's Trojans have the best season records of the schools entered, and for a third straight season the battle for regional honors promises to be between the two local powerhouses.

Madison has yet to capture a Class A regional title game, having lost its bid to Venice for the past two years, but was a state contender prior to the enrollment classification decision.

Venice won in 1973 and placed third in the state finals under then Coach William Ohlendorf.

The Red Devils won again in 1974 under new Coach Essington, and failed to reach the state tourney when eventual state champion Lawrenceville defeated the Red Devils in super-sectional play.

Last year, Venice swept through the tournament series to capture the state Class A title.

Essington's Red Devils have defeated five participating schools at Freeburg during the season — Assumption 93-53, St. Henry 70-57, Columbia 90-57, Freeburg 67-56 and Madison 62-61 — and have not met the others.

Graham's Trojans have met and defeated three of the schools — Assumption 92-64, St. Henry 62-53 and Dupu 76-53.

Venice lacks player height, but the Red Devils have shooting skill from the field and at the free throw line.

Venice, led by Senior Jaffee Woolfork's 449 points, has garnered 768 field goals and 237 charity tosses while holding opponents to a total of 1,222 points.

Also for Venice, Reggie Gardner has 362, James Turner 227, James Crowder 229, Ron Salmond 122 and Larrick Arnold 96.

Madison has the edge over Venice on rebounding with 67 Anthony Canada, who became eligible to join the squad in January after transferring here from another school district.

And the Trojans have awesome scoring power in brothers Ron and Randall Jones.

The Trojans have hit 772 field goals and 284 free throws during the season and Ron Jones's 433 points pace the scoring.

Randall Jones has 177, Bankhead 190, Joe Gulaish 171, Edwin Garrett 179 and Ron Williams 93.

The Class A Freeburg tournament survivor will advance to the Vandalia sectional along with the champions of regional at Litchfield, Farmis and St. Jacob.

10th Cougar cage victory

The Metros of Indiana U-Purdue U-Indianapolis were the immediate target Saturday night at the Hoosier state capital city as the Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville basketball team upped its record to 10-15 with a 73-62 victory.

But even though the Cougar coaches, Jim Dudley and Dan Thornton, were proud of their charges, the SIUE players had to have their minds on Wednesday night's big battle with their bitterest rival, the University of Missouri-St. Louis Rivermen, at SIUE's home court, the Edwardsville high gym floor. The tipoff is slated for 8 p.m.

The Cougars probably played their best first half of the season against the Metros. They zoomed to a 41-33 lead at the intermission on shooting by their senior captain and forward, John Str

Says education only for wealthy if tuition hiked

Dr. Stanley P. Hazen, dean of the Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville School of Dental Medicine, says that tuition increases recommended by the Illinois Board of Higher Education (BHE) will tend to encourage only the wealthy to have a higher education.

Selective Service offices closing

Lieutenant Colonel Robert Kinschiff, state director of Selective Service for Illinois, has announced the closing of all local draft board offices by the end of February.

Col. Kinschiff said this is the result of a drastically reduced budget recommendation for the Selective Service System, and will cause what the national director, Byron V. Pepton, recently termed "a dramatically altered structure" of the agency.

In Illinois, 65 employees will be terminated on Feb. 28, and another four on May 8. Throughout the entire Selective Service System, 1400 employees will leave the agency in February and another 200 in May. By the end of fiscal year 1977, the entire agency will employ only approximately 100 people.

This reduction in the work force of the draft agency made necessary the termination of all registrant processing on Jan. 27. State Director Kinschiff said, "This means there will be no registration or lottery drawing in the foreseeable future, no classification of men, and young men will no longer have any requirement to report changes of address or anything else to their local boards."

For many years, all men were required to have their "draft" card in their personal possession at all times, but this is no longer required. If a Selective Service status card is lost or stolen, there is no need to ask for a replacement card. "In fact," said Kinschiff, "replacement cards will no longer be issued."

After the local draft board offices are closed this month, all Selective Service records will be transferred to appropriate Federal Records Centers.

The state director said the only Selective Service contact in Illinois will be his office. He may be reached at Illinois State Headquarters, Selective Service System, 528 Fourth Fifth St., Springfield, Ill. 62701. Any person participating in President Ford's Clemency Program who wishes to enroll with Selective Service to perform his alternate service obligation must contact the state director in person, by phone or by mail after the end of February.

encourage only the wealthy to have a higher education.

The BHE is proposing that all students in state-supported colleges and universities pay one-third of their instructional costs. The proposal is now before the General Assembly for consideration. For SIUE, it would mean a 58 per cent hike for resident undergraduates and a 92 per cent increase for graduate students and even more for dental school students.

Dean Hazen said present experience has demonstrated that most dental students are about $15,000 in debt when they graduate. He added that the young dentists may have to spend at least $25,000 to set up a practice after graduation. "If you also consider the possibility of having to remodel office space and acquire a home in a community, it is not uncommon for these dentists to begin a practice almost $100,000 in debt," Dr. Hazen said.

"If tuition continues to rise, it will be difficult to find students willing to go into the health care fields," he said. "Loans are becoming difficult for our students to find and they can't work and go to school at the same time. Our students must spend their evenings studying since their days are consumed by classes and clinics. There is no time for them to have productive part-time jobs."

"My concern about the tuition hike is that people who are qualified will not be able to fulfill their potential if we start charging excessive tuition at state schools," the dean said. "I hope that those not in the health professions have concern for the health care of our population."

"Everybody has to pitch in and help those who are training to help others. It is rather simpleistic to talk about recovering educational costs at a time when we all know that money is tight," he continued, "but we have to decide where our tax money is going to be spent."

"The dental school was started to provide dentists for Central and Southern Illinois, a part of our state that is economically depressed but is also lacking in health care personnel. I am disturbed when I have the feeling that politicians are looking at things only from the standpoint of what it costs and not considering the human needs of a population."

Dean Hazen continued, "If we keep on increasing tuition we will discourage qualified low income persons from going into dentistry. Even those who do continue in dental school will be discouraged from staying in this area or going into small town practices because their indebtedness will be so great that they will have to go to an area where they can earn a higher income to recover the extra costs of their education."

Dean Hazen also discounts the theory that health education should cost more since graduates have a higher potential income. "Students are much more sophisticated today about looking ahead at income potentials whether they are real or imagined," he said.

"At one time I had strong feelings about people paying their own way in school. But tuition costs cover only a portion of education costs and we will not solve the problems of the high costs of health care by raising the costs of health education."

One of the real strengths of the educational system in America, according to Dr. Hazen, is that the nation has public schools. "The role of the public school is to enable everyone who is desirous and capable to receive higher education. Health education is so expensive that if we are really going to have students pay one-third of their educational costs, it will only be an education available for the wealthy."

SIUE dental students have few avenues of financial aid open to them. No tuition waivers, scholarships or assistantships are given to students at the dental school. The Illinois Guaranteed Loan Program provides a maximum loan of $2,500 a year for students. SIUE dental students pay approximately $800 a year in tuition and fees which does not include the thousands of dollars they must pay for instruments and books required for the program.

In addition, many of the students are married and have children. Other loan funds for dental students such as the American Fund for Dental Health, which has a high 11 per cent interest rate, are discouraging to students seeking funds to assist their educational program.

The financial aid problems don't end there. "The federal government at one time was helpful to students in health education programs, but now it is moving to get out of student loan programs. This was the best loan fund we had for the students, but since SIUE has only had students for about four years, there was not enough money accumulated in this perpetuating loan fund to realize any significant amount of money being gained for loan purposes," Dean Hazen said.

The federal loan program was set up so that students could pay back their loans at a low rate of interest following graduation. Money paid back was kept in a fund at each individual school so it would be available to help other students in future years.

The dental school is currently in the process of establishing an emergency loan fund to help students. But Dean Hazen pointed out that this type of fund requires a great deal of capital, and he admitted that it would not be enough to be of significant help to low income students. He said that it will only provide small amounts of money to help those students who are waiting for other loans to be processed.

'Spare the rod' is urged

(American Psychological Association)

The October 1975 U.S. Supreme Court ruling that schools have the right to use corporal punishment in disciplining students, under state law, even over the objections of parents, has provoked a renewal of the debate over the pros and cons of physical discipline.

Two University of California at Los Angeles psychologists claim that "the use of corporal punishment—by the state, by the school or by the parent—as a prescribed mode of discipline is objectionable."

"It sets a poor example for the child. It teaches the child that physical punishment is the appropriate response to use in conflict situations."

Drs. Seymour Feshback and Norma Deitch Feshback, in a paper entitled "Children's Rights and Parental Punishment Practices," trace the dismal history of child-rearing practices.

The professors also review research which indicates that physical punishment—beating, slapping, kicking—and negative psychological punishment—guilt-inducing and isolation techniques—fail to communicate to the child what the appropriate response is, and that the effects of such punishment as a suppressor of undesired behavior are questionable.

Suzanne Bordin-Sandler, a child psychologist at the Sagamore Children's Center in Melville, N.Y., suggests a relationship between our child-rearing practices and "the alarming trend toward acceptance of violence as a legitimate method of coping with a complex and frustrating world."

Sandler believes that "the persons who are committed to guiding the child into independence must teach the child that the world is harsh so that one can learn how to survive. But these persons should never be directly involved in that lesson."

"In our culture, it is more common for an individual to experience the harshness of the world directly from one's own parents. Consequently, instead of learning how not to be a victim, the child learns to be an aggressor."

The recent Supreme Court decision is not surprising in view of the evidence that approximately 90 per cent of American parents resort to physical punishment.

School disciplinary practices will probably continue to include corporal punishment until parental punishment practices are dramatically modified.

The Feshbacks acknowledge that a modification of almost universal punishment practices requires an invasion of family privacy and the domain of parents' rights—no easy task.

The authors believe that acceptable disciplinary practices "presuppose that the function of discipline is not to penalize the child but to correct, mold or perfect the mental faculties or moral character." However, they stress that the advancement of children's rights does not mean abandonment of children's responsibilities, i.e., "age-appropriate behavior characterized by independence, self-regulation and serving familial or social needs."

According to the Feshbacks, a major barrier in the education of and communication to parents of effective and psychologically sound socialization practices is the secrecy that surrounds this area of parent-child interaction.

Many parents are uneasy and embarrassed about discussing their attitudes and behaviors in the realm of child-rearing, especially in regard to discipline. However, the authors note one sign of hope—"that the myriad of books providing advice for parents and the mushrooming of parent training programs reflect the anxiety, curiosity and needs of parents for guidance and support in their child-rearing efforts and roles."

The Feshbacks conclude that a community which offers help and assistance to parents in regard to information, guidance and child care resources serves, at the same time, as a protector of and advocate for children and their rights.

The American Psychological Association (APA) is opposed to the use of corporal punishment in schools, juvenile facilities and other child care institutions.

In mid-1975, the APA established a Task Force on Children's Rights, chaired by Norma Deitch Feshback. The Task Force's first priority is the consideration of corporal punishment.

Business Women select contest winners

Mrs. Carolyn Koester and Mrs. Betty Roberson will represent the Granite City Business and Professional Women's Club in District 14 contests on March 14 and an opportunity to advance to state competition in April at the Illinois Federation of Business and Professional Women's convention in Chicago.

Both women are members of the local business women's group and were selected to represent the club at last week's dinner meeting at Charlie's Restaurant.

Mrs. Koester was named winner of the "Young Careerist" contest and Mrs. Roberson was chosen the top "Speak-Off" candidate. Last year's local Speak-Off winner, Mrs. Lois Wetton, is the current state federation champion.

Sixty members and guests attended the dinner, including Mrs. Joan Alter of Chicago, Independent Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, who is running on the slate with incumbent Gov. Dan Walker.

Mrs. Alter outlined her qualifications and offered her concepts of the role a lieutenant governor should assume when elected. She stressed a person holding the office must work closely with the state's chief executive and not use the position as a stepping stone to higher office.

The candidate spent some time responding to questions from club members, most of which focused upon the teachers' retirement fund, state lottery and public aid practices. Mrs. Anita Kendall Eltiffin, Democratic candidate for state representative, 66th District, also was a guest at the dinner and addressed the members.

Mrs. LaVelle Stephens, Young Careerist and dinner chairman, introduced Mrs. Koester who spoke on the theme, "My Widening Horizons."

Mrs. Koester currently is employed in the law offices of Chapman and Chapman in Granite City and formerly worked at a "half-way house" for ex-offenders. Her experiences in rehabilitation formed the basis of her remarks.

Mrs. Roberson, a graduate of Phase II of the BFW Individual

Development course, also addressed the group, speaking on the topic, "Prejudice."

She is employed as secretary to the director of finance at the St. Louis YMCA.

Both women will repeat their presentations at the district conference March 14 at Tony's Restaurant in Belleville, along with other club winners.

The Rev. Paul Surbey, Miss Jean Betzel and Miss Regina Cane served as judges in the Granite City contest.

Mrs. Rosemary Baseden, president, conducted the business session and welcomed a new member, Birdella Meyenberg, who was inducted into the club.

Plans for the 1976 IFBFW state convention were reviewed and members were urged to make their reservations at an early date. More than 1,200 women are expected to attend the event, scheduled April 22 to April 25 at the Palmer House in Chicago.

Among the highlights of the evening was an "International Night" observance, commemorating International Women's Year.

An impressive ceremony, consisting of lighting several tiers of candles, was conducted by Mrs. Helene Bischoff, IFWY chairman, to represent the formation and progress made by the International Federation of Business and Professional Women throughout the world.

"The International Federation has consistently stood for women's right to work, equal pay for equal work, increased employment opportunities for advancements and removal of discrimination against employment of married or older women," Mrs. Bischoff said.

She continued, "It has worked to remove many other restrictions that have historically barred women from achieving equal status, and members have also campaigned actively to place more women in public office and policy-making positions."

Mrs. Bischoff said the International Federation came into being when Lena Madessin Phillips, president of the United States BFW Federation, set up a Commission on International Relations in 1926 to survey the need for an international federation.

In the late 1920's, members of the USBFW visited many European countries to interest business and professional women in forming such an organization.

In 1930, Mrs. Bischoff said, business and professional women from 16 countries met in Geneva, Switzerland, where they formed the International Federation and elected Miss Phillips as its first president.

In World War II, seven federations were unable to function, but six continued, including Australia, Canada, Finland, New Zealand, Sweden, the United Kingdom, and the United States, the narrator explained.

The movement grew after World War II and federations are now in existence in Argentina, Austria, Belgium, Costa Rica, Denmark, France, Germany, Greece, India, Republic of Ireland, Israel, Italy, Japan, Korea, Mexico, Netherlands, Nigeria, Norway, Pakistan, Peru, Rhodesia, South Africa, South West Africa, Switzerland, Taiwan and Zambia, in addition to the previous six, Mrs. Bischoff said.

Associate clubs also are located in the Bahamas, Bangladesh, Barbados, Botswana, Chile, Colombia, El Salvador, Guatemala, Guyana, Haiti, Iran, Jamaica, Jordan, Kenya, Lebanon, Lesotho, Nicaragua, Panama, Paraguay, South Vietnam, Thailand and Trinidad.

"Today the International Federation is a powerful organization of world importance," Mrs. Bischoff stated. "Public opinion and legislation in many countries have been influenced by its work. It has broadened our horizons, our rights, our skills, our opportunities, and our service to one another and to the community has been expanded."

The International Federation presents information and opinions from national federations and associate clubs to the United Nations, has consultative status with the United Nations Economic and Social Council, United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organizations and the Board of the United Nations Children's Emergency Fund. It also works with the Commission on Human Rights and the Commission on the Status of Women, and with the International Labor Organizations.

In a practical way, it also has helped the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Program for Refugees in the Middle East by financing the education and training of many young women, Mrs. Bischoff reported.

Assisting Mrs. Bischoff in presenting the program were

Helen Christich, Delores Allen, Jackie Logan and Debbie Jolly. Mrs. Baseden announced the March 17 dinner meeting will take place at the Moose Lodge, Historical pageant at Frohardt

A choral pageant tracing the history of America, presented by the fifth and sixth grade students under the direction of Mrs. Jeanne Totian, highlighted the Frohardt School PTA meeting last week at the school.

Other teachers who assisted with the Bicentennial program were Mrs. Marilyn Ronney, Larry Curry, Miss Carrie Cullison, William Snedecor and Mrs. Annabel Chesnut. Brownie Troop 387, led by Mrs. Joan Spahr and Mrs. Sylvia Molaski, presented the colors preceding the meeting.

Jolly 60's hear physician

Dr. Robert Blankenship, a local physician, spoke on "Diabetes" to 63 members of the Jolly 60's Club, who met last week at Grace Baptist Church. He described the history, symptoms and other illnesses which can result from diabetes. An open discussion followed.

Navy Mothers buy craft kits

Quad-City Navy Mothers Chapter 850 allocated $24 to purchase craft kits for hospitalized veterans at a meeting on Thursday at the VFW Hall.

Commander Margaret Minnes was in charge, with 17 members present.

The chapter charter was draped in memory of Mrs. Pearl Giffin, an 18-year member of the organization, who died Feb. 6.

Members also agreed to donate $10 to assist with transportation for a band to attend the national convention of Navy Mothers in Chicago.

Hostesses for the evening, Mrs. Ella Rabb, Mrs. Verna Spurrier and Mrs. Minzes, directed the games and awarded prizes to Juanita Williams, Mickey Kruseck and Mrs. Stella Miller. Other prizes for the evening were given to Mrs. Edna Miller and Mrs. Kruseck.

The next meeting will be March 4 at the VFW Hall. Anyone interested in visiting or joining the chapter may contact Mrs. Gladys Markowich at 876-0836.

Girl Scouts tour Baskin-Robbins

Junior Girl Scout Troop 313, sponsored by Parkview School, toured Baskin-Robbins' ice cream facility last week. After the tour, each girl decorated an individual clown cone.

Troop members participating included Allison Ashmore, Lori Dettlmer, Michelle Davis, J'Lynn Hankins, Anne-Marie Lipchik, Mary Ellen McIlvoy, Carla Niemeyer, Denise Niemeyer, Christie Peterson, Ellen Range, Carol Schulte, Linda Schulte, Sally Sobolewski and Sandy Varlingo. The girls were accompanied by their leaders, Mrs. Sonya Niemeyer and Mrs. Diane Varlingo.

In connection with earning their Bicentennial badge, the troop will travel to Edwardsville Saturday to tour the Madison County Historical Society Museum.

Troop 313 also will participate in Girl Scout Thinking Day to be held Sunday at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Guest luncheon Circle 4 topic

Circle 4 of the First United Presbyterian Church met in the home of Mrs. Dorothy McCauley and made plans to attend the UPW guest luncheon Tuesday.

Mrs. Eunice Witter, chairman, presided at the meeting. She announced Lenten services are scheduled to be held at both Niedringhaus United Methodist Church and St. Peter Evangelical United Church of Christ.

The Yearbook of Prayer was given by Virginia Milster and the Fellowship of the Least Coin service was led by Violet Jefferson.

Mrs. Sue Busch is card club hostess.

Mrs. Sue Busch, 4600 D'Lynn Drive, entertained the Jolly 8 Canasta Club, Thursday evening. She served a dessert course preceding an evening of games.

Those winning prizes were Mesdames Delores Riddle, Lucille Broyles, Pam Israel and Karen Broyles.

Also attending were Mrs. Clara Winter, Mrs. Virginia Kital and Mrs. Carolyn Bledsoe. Mrs. Lucille Broyles invited the group to her home for the next meeting.

MR. AND MRS. RON JONES. They were married in an afternoon ceremony at St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church in Madison. The bride is the former Rose Ann Hudzik, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley G. Hudzik of Madison.

BRIDE-ELECT. Miss Michelle R. Blummer, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Blummer of Caseyville, are announcing her engagement to Jeff White of Granite City. A July 3 wedding is planned.

Jones-Hudzik wedding at St. Mary's Church

St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church in Madison was the scene of the wedding on Feb. 7 of Miss Rose Ann Hudzik, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley G. Hudzik, 829 Greenwood St., Madison, and Ron Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson D. Jones, 1713 Rhodds St., Madison.

Bouquets of white gladiolus and lavender, blue and green carnations, interspersed with white daisies and baby's breath, decorated the altar for the double ring ceremony, performed at 2 p.m. by Father Conrad Motola.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore her mother's wedding gown fashioned of ivory satin with a net yoke traced with an embroidered applique, long fitted sleeves and skirt which extended into a full cathedral train.

Her full-length veil of ivory illusion was held in place with a beaded Juliette cap. She carried a cascade style bouquet of red roses, pink carnations and stephanotis, accented with satin streamers.

Maid of honor Miss Sandra Hudzik, a sister of the bride, chose a lavender polyester halter dress complemented with a violet velvet hooded jacket. Lavender ostrich feathers outlined the jacket hood.

Juan Watson, another sister of the bride, and Patricia Malone served as bridesmaids. They were attired in identical dresses in a combination of pastel blue and navy and pink and red.

All the attendants held colonial bouquets of carnations in hues to match their dresses with white daisies and baby's breath.

Flower girl Amy Mason, a cousin of the bride, wore a long pastel and emerald green dress designed to match the adult attendants' gowns.

She held a nosegay of mint green carnations, daisies and baby's breath.

James Watson, the bride's nephew, was the ringbearer. The groom chose his brother, Thomas Jones, as his best man.

Robert Richert and Mike Dittman were groomsmen. Escorting the guests to their seats were Jerry Nizinski and Thomas Howlett.

Mrs. Hudzik selected a pink formal gown with gold accessories and the groom's mother, Mrs. Jones, appeared in an aqua gown, complemented with silver accessories.

The Rev. James S. Lemons officiated at the double ring ceremony at 7 o'clock. The bride's grandfather, the Rev. Walter Carter of Advance, Mo., offered the prayer of dedication.

National Steel Corp. investing heavily with dollars and inventive talent to help purify Quad-Cities' air

Some major companies have "solved" the pollution problem by permanently shutting down facilities and concentrating their production elsewhere. This community is fortunate that National Steel Corporation is meeting the issue head-on by devising and financing a $17½ million program to curb emissions at its Granite City Steel division's coke ovens and basic oxygen furnace vessels, the two chief areas of concern.

The massive corporate expenditure agreed upon by plant officials and the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency is only one of a number of significant, multi-million-dollar endeavors here. Earlier projects dealt with "the first 95 percent" of pollution. Now, the much more elusive "last five percent" is the target.

It is said that "where there's a will, there's a way," but the quest for Colorado-type air purity has not been easy. In many instances, the technology to provide solutions does not exist.

Granite City Steel has had to conduct extensive research and experimentation in order to invent heretofore unknown anti-pollution equipment and procedures. An example is the new coke pushing device being pioneered here.

Staged charging, a technique first tried by other firms, will be utilized at the local coke ovens. And a local innovation, particularly cooling equipment on each coke oven battery stack, will be installed if some of the other actions to be taken this year fail to provide desired results fast enough.

Amendment would stop 'double dip' jobs

By RAY SERATI

SPRINGFIELD — The drive to get signatures on petitions seeking three amendments to the state constitution which supporters say will bring about political honesty is gearing up for the big push. The move to get the proposals before voters in the Nov. 2 general election is being supported by an organization called the Coalition for Political Honesty.

The amendments would: — Prohibit legislators from drawing their entire annual salary of $20,000 on their first day in office.

— Prevent legislators from voting on bills in which they have a personal or financial conflict of interest.

— Outlaw double dipping — the practice of some legislators of holding two or more public payroll jobs.

The first and third proposed amendments probably hold the greatest interests of the voters. The second one is somewhat difficult because, as some point out, it could create problems for lawyers and school teachers in the General Assembly, which always has been regarded as a citizen legislature. By this it is meant that serving in the legislature was not a fulltime job and a person had to have a second job to make a living. But supporters of the amendments say that was in the days when the pay was low for state legislators.

State chairman of the coalition, David Ellsworth, in announcing support of the amendments introduced by individuals and groups, said that the petitions have over 100,000 signatures.

However, to get the issues on a citizen's referendum would take 375,000 signatures. The coalition would like to have more than the required number to be on the safe side.

Ellsworth said there are more than 30,000 petitions scattered throughout the state and he is hopeful the required number of signatures will be obtained before the May 1 deadline. Ellsworth, who also is chairman of the issues committee for Illinois Common Cause, said the move is gathering support from a cross section of Illinoisans. This ranges from church groups to individual legislators and candidates for statewide office.

But some groups which usually back such moves have shelved the plan.

These include the Independent Voters of Illinois (IVI), the Independent Precinct Organization (IPO) and the League of Women Voters who have decided not to take a stand. But Ellsworth says individual members of the league are seeking signatures for the petition.

State Sen. Dawn Clark Latsch, an independent Chicago Democrat who once was an aide to former Gov. Otto Kerner and a delegate to the 1970 Constitutional Convention, has expressed opposition.

Sen. Netch, who is aligned in the Senate with a group of Democrats who usually support Gov. Daniel Walker and oppose Democrats aligned with the Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, has said she felt the ban on double dipping might preclude a number of people from serving in the legislature.

To this she has pointed to the village trustees or village officials, part-time lecturers at colleges and universities in Illinois and school teachers.

However, Joanne H. Alter of Chicago, running for the Democratic party lieutenant governor nomination, has had press conferences to indicate her support of the citizen initiative.

Sen. Alter, who on the Chicago Sanitary District Board of Trustees has maintained that in some cases the appointment of a legislator to another governmental body is "used as a political payoff."

James R. Thompson of Chicago, seeking the Republican nomination for governor, has endorsed the political honesty initiative, as has Walker's candidate for attorney general, Ronald Stoddard. The Illinois Common Cause group has announced support of the citizen-initiative plan.

The executive committee of the Illinois Jaycees has approved a resolution supporting the initiative move, but it must now be presented at their state convention in February.

Under the present pay plan for legislators a member can elect to collect his or her annual salary in one lump sum at the start of a General Assembly session. Since a General Assembly session in reality covers two years, the lump sum payment can be for two years or one. But if the individual elects to take the full one year or two year payment, the taxes also must be paid.

Federal debt costing $38 billion a year in interest

The federal Treasury has gone to the financial well with the sale of almost $7 billion in federal bonds and notes.

That's only a fraction of the estimated $76 billion budget deficit for the 1975-76 fiscal year which ends June 30 or of the total of $90 billion the government will be forced to borrow in calendar 1976.

Bombastic debate in Washington has kept most voters aware of the extent to which this nation is operating in red ink. But the public generally remains in blissful ignorance of the direct cost of its extravagance.

The national debt by June 30 is expected to soar over the $100 billion mark, double what it was a mere 15 years ago. The interest will amount to almost $38 billion next year, making up most of the more modest deficit contemplated by President Ford for fiscal 1977.

Government accountants, however, have managed to find a silver lining. The public's holdings of the federal debt in June are expected to equal only 28.3 percent of gross national product, lower than in all but three of the past 23 years.

This is described as evidence that the country is getting rich faster than it is going into debt, but the $600 billion debt and $38 million annual interest cost are so large that they continue to cause valid concern, particularly with deficit spending continuing.

Two-year state budget proposal merits consideration

Press-Record Springfield Bureau — When former Gov. Richard Ogilvie proposed the first annual budget for Illinois seven years ago, it seemed like a good idea.

A preponderance of people associated with state government and close observers of the state fiscal scene agreed that it should be both simpler and more practical to look 18 months ahead in budget planning than to try to foresee needs and revenues 30 months in advance, as was essential for the old system of biennial budgeting.

Now there are a lot of second thoughts. What seemed like such a good idea in theory has not turned out so well in practice. Some of the state's leaders are proposing a return to two-year budgets, and their suggestions have merit.

Senate Minority Leader William Harris of Pontiac, would combine the return to biennial budgeting with a revamping of our system of legislative sessions.

Harris would have the General Assembly consider the budget — and only the budget — in the first five months of odd-numbered years. The governor would then be given the month of June in which to sign or veto budget bills approved by the legislature, and the Assembly would return for a brief veto session in the early fall.

The entire even-year legislative sessions would be given over to consideration of legislation dealing with matters other than state revenue and appropriations.

Benefits Harris sees from such an arrangement include: — Legislators and legislative staffs would have more time to analyze the budget and appropriations bills. Then, in even-numbered years, they could give full attention to substantive bills, those making or changing laws.

— The legislature could operate with smaller staffs because the same persons could concentrate on budget matters one year and other issues the next instead of needing separate staffs for both.

— Directors of departments and other state officials would have to spend less time on budgets if they have to prepare them only every other year.

There would be less opportunity for pressure groups to push legislators and administrators into increasing appropriations for their pet causes or projects.

— Local governments would know far in advance what to expect in the way of state funds, so they could plan and budget better.

The Harris plan would require a constitutional change to restrict the legislature to budget matters and limit the session to five months in odd numbered years. Supporters of the idea point out that one or more special sessions could be called by either the governor or legislative leaders if there were pressing matters other than budget that need attention promptly.

Secretary of State Michael Howlett, now a candidate for governor, agrees with the Harris contention that annual budgeting has greatly accelerated spending. "Every time we open the door of the legislature to consider appropriations, the price goes up," Howlett has told an audience.

Howlett said that, if elected, he would try to get back to biennial budgeting. "Every time we open the door of the legislature to a return to the biennial system, even though Illinois' present Constitution provides for annual legislative sessions. The governor and the legislature could make the switch by agreement."

The proposal Sen. Harris has advanced or something similar may offer the best hope for budgeting improvement.

BOOKS

THE BOURLETTES FORTUNE, by Nicholas Gage; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, Inc., 433 pages; $9.95.

When you think of a Greek shipping magnate, the late Aristotle Onassis of course comes to mind. Nicholas Gage could have had Onassis in mind when he wrote "The Bourlettos Fortune." But you'd have to decide that for yourself.

Kosmas Bourlettos, around whom this novel swirls like the rolled waters on which his ship sailed, is a mixture of tempered steel and an ingrained compassion for the less fortunate.

This man born in poverty on the Greek island of Chios in 1896 could not shake off an inherent kindness even in the toughest world of bitter rivalry in which all Greek shipowners seem to exist.

The author was born in Greece and has anchored his novel of the sea on an intimate knowledge of the life, customs and moral code of the Greek island villages that shaped the men and women who people his pages.

Kosmas Bourlettos rose to become a shipping tycoon, but not until he already had lived what seemed a hard time as a deckhand and roundabout sailor. He learned his trade well, and with it how to survive, how to handle money and sex, but not necessarily people.

Hunger and poverty often were his classmates in this cruel world. By the time Bourlettos arrives in London in 1919 he is well-equipped to move in whatever direction he finds the hope of quick success. As a ship broker he makes enough money to invest in a freighter fleet of his own.

Bourlettos moves upward swiftly and steadily in the strange society of London Greeks — as counselor, lover and finally husband.

He shifts his empire to New York as World War II erupts, only to find it more ruthless than London.

Two young shipowners not only become his protectors but complete for his daughter's hand. But the Greek and the American Jason Venetis are treacherous rogues and wind up as Bourlettos' rivals, even his enemies — and eventually as his heirs.

Illness, an accident and his own character team up to produce an ironic twist to Bourlettos' career, one which he had hoped would see him establish a dynasty bearing his name, one he could pass along to his children.

Senator submits ethics measures

SPRINGFIELD — The State Senate already has two proposed constitutional amendments introduced by Sen. James (Pete) Philip, of Elmhurst, DuPage County Republican chairman, dealing with legislative ethics. The amendments carrying a host of coposors are aimed at the paying of legislators and the number of offices which a legislator can hold — double dipping.

Philip introduced the two amendments in the fall session of the General Assembly which was held in November. One of Philip's proposed constitutional amendments provides that the salary of a member of the General Assembly must be paid in equal monthly installments, and changes in the salary of a member shall not take effect during the term for which he has been elected. This is an added matter because presently the salary must not be increased during the middle of a legislator's term.

The second Philip constitutional amendment provides that the salary of a member of the General Assembly shall not be increased during the middle of a legislator's term.

The second Philip constitutional amendment provides that the salary of a member of the General Assembly shall not be increased during the middle of a legislator's term.

Since this is an election year, the amendments would allow a legislator to serve in a second governmental post only if he or she is elected to that specific post such as village mayor or trustee or senatorial district trustee. It would not allow the appointment to these positions or positions where pay for services rendered is made from tax funds.

When he introduced the proposals, Philip said he didn't get any major fanfare. But because of the ongoing citizen-initiative any action on the proposed constitutional amendments would be held up until after the November election.

He must get the proposed amendments through the Senate and House before May 1. The deadline on constitutional amendments is that they must be approved either by the General Assembly or presented in a citizen initiative six months prior to the next general election, which this year is Nov. 2.

Because a citizen's group is pushing the proposals it might mean the General Assembly will try to get something on the books covering the situation and if the constitutional route isn't really the most favored it could come in the form of a law.

The legislature may have to take some form of action, because people are now saying the constitutional move is not the best at this time.

At any rate attention could be focused on members of the 79th General Assembly in the area of legislative ethics when the second session begins in earnest after the March 15 primary election.

However, there have been indications that the spring session of this year's General Assembly will be held to only budgetary and revenue matters. It could be reasoned the two proposed amendments dealing with fiscal matters and should be acted upon in one form or another.

It is doubtful that in this election year the General Assembly will leave the two proposed Philip amendments lying in a Senate committee.

college professors who now serve in the General Assembly. The third portion of the amendment deals with conflict of interest. The question many critics have is how do you define a conflict of interest. They think the wording is far too broad to be applicable in most situations. Can a farmer vote on a farm issue?

Obviously, supporters think the conflict of interests was defined, and they cite similar proposals in other states as examples.

Regardless of the merits of the proposal, many political observers think the motivating force behind the idea is to help re-elect the governor.

Patrick Quinn, a former assistant to the governor, organized the effort. And some of the governor's precinct workers use the honesty question as a door opener as they campaign door-to-door for Walker.

The harsh critics of the proposal ask: Why don't they have enough political honesty to admit it's a Walker plan?

Cruelty to animals by many people

To the Editor:

I'm tired of picking up the paper and reading letters from citizens who are animal haters, praising the dogcatchers.

I understand we have to have animal control in our city. But I also understand that a dogcatcher should have concern and feeling for the animals he works with.

I have seen dogcatchers operate many times and am not happy with the way they handle animals.

Most have a big fear of animals and will use a control stick on a four-week-old puppy, tighten the stick till the pup's air is cut off and his eyes bulge out.

I feel we should hire men who can handle the job with some concern toward animals.

Every time there is an article from some animal hater they throw in some heartbreaking article about an animal attacking a child.

This is for the lady that wrote the article in the paper Feb. 12. Have you ever seen a pup left in the weeds to starve to death?

Have you ever seen a kitten that has had his foot cut off by someone for kicks? Have you ever seen a kitten that kids had run over on their bikes till they crushed its pelvis? Or a big tomcat that had to have his toes amputated because he was caught in a trap? Well, I have.

I work at an animal shelter and I see all kinds of "beautiful sights."

You talk about what animals do to man. Look what man has done to animals.

God put man above animals and man has taken advantage of it.

Sometimes an animal has to bite to get away from the child that's torturing it.

The reason we need dogcatchers to start with is because of man. There are people that don't have the sense to put up an animal when it's in heat, so we end up with overpopulation of animals.

Other people don't care enough to chain up fence-in their dogs and keep them off the streets.

Until the people become more intelligent and start caring, nothing will improve.

It's time people quit making animals the culprits and start picking on the humans.

TAKE THE CHAOS OUT OF THE STATE'S ATTORNEY'S OFFICE

✓ to total home comfort
✓ to efficient heating and cooling
✓ to wise use of energy

Could your home be more comfortable? Could you use energy more wisely?
If you're asking yourself questions like these, there's a simple answer. Insulation.
Don't take it for granted that your home is adequately insulated. Most homes don't have insulation that measures up to today's higher, energy-conscious standards. Many older homes have none at all.
Your Energy Use Advisor at Illinois Power Company can tell you if you have adequate insulation between joists in your attic. As for exterior walls, if they're cold to the touch in winter, insulation is needed.

Insulation can provide more than a comfortable, quiet home. It's also a wise investment to provide fuel savings.
For the answer to total home comfort, talk to an insulation contractor or building supply dealer. The sooner you do, the sooner you begin enjoying your home more with wiser use of energy.

Cronin sees progress in E. St. Louis

Major improvements in fiscal accountability highlight progress being made in East St. Louis School District 189, according to a "report card" from State Superintendent of Education Joseph M. Cronin. The report, submitted last week to School Board President Clyde Jordan, is an evaluation of District 189 operations since an Aug. 15 special election in which four of the seven current board members were chosen to replace members convicted of extortion and racketeering.

The Illinois Office of Education, which Dr. Cronin heads, has been monitoring the district's activities since charges were filed against the four previous board members last spring.

Dr. Cronin said the retirement of $2.4 million in tax anticipation warrants, payment of current bills on a regular basis and reduction of debts from previous years "have substantially improved the credit rating of the district" and contribute to more competitive bidding on school contracts. In addition, he said, the district expects to make full payment by the end of the fiscal year on a $600,000 retirement fund deficit.

Another accomplishment cited by the state's chief school officer was the elimination of many critical deficiencies in temporary classroom buildings. Related achievements listed include major building repairs and improved maintenance.

Dr. Cronin also noted progress in reducing pupil-teacher ratios and in eliminating assignments of professionals to areas where they are not properly certified.

The East St. Louis district indicates that added savings have been achieved by reducing its payroll, but no dollar figure has been fixed. Dr. Cronin asked for report of the number of positions and the total payroll for 1973 through 1975 in order to document economies made.

This year, through careful administrative planning, the ratio has been reduced in the primary grades so that no teacher-kindergarten through grade three—has more than 30 pupils, the superintendent comments.

Improvement in assignments of professional personnel, he said, resulted from combined efforts of the school district's administrative staff and the office of Educational Service Region Superintendent Martha O'Malley.

Transportation and food service programs of the school system were listed by Dr. Cronin as areas where additional changes are necessary to bring about dollar savings and improved service. He noted, however, that moving the transportation maintenance and dispatching operations to the same location as the central office "obviously was a positive step."

The state superintendent asked that the board follow guidelines of "The Illinois Program for Evaluation, Supervision and Recognition of Schools" in respect to the areas of authority allocated to the board and those areas assigned to District 189. Leroy Duckworth.

As a final note, he commended the district's central administrative staff for "extra effort put forth" in working with the regional superintendent's office as well as with representatives of the state education agency. He said additional "report cards" will be submitted to the East St. Louis School Board in 1976 and will cover such items as curriculum not covered in the current report.

Coroner candidates in March primaries

Mrs. Dallas M. Burke, 49, of Alton, is the lone Madison County coroner candidate in the Democratic primary election. She was appointed as coroner on July 31, 1972, following the death of her husband, Coroner Thomas J. Burke, and then was elected to a four-year term that fall.

Mrs. Burke is owner and operator of the Burke funeral homes in Alton and Grafton.

"During my more than three years in the office of coroner, I feel I have done a good job on behalf of the people," she commented to the Press-Record.

"I am a member of the Illinois Coroners Association and have been elected as district director of the ICA for 20 counties in Central and Southern Illinois."

A registered nurse, Mrs. Burke formerly worked at St. Joseph's Hospital in Alton and the former Western Military Academy in that city.

Born in Germantown, Wis., she attended schools there and was trained as a nurse at St. Joseph's in Alton.

The mother of five children, she has been affiliated with the funeral business for 28 years and has had association with the coroner's office for 19 years.

Hugh R. Hairston is the only individual to file for a county-wide office in the March 16 Republican primary election in Madison County.

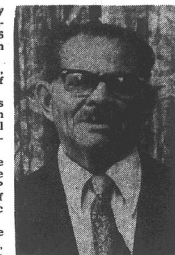

A resident of 800 Main St., Venice, he seeks the office of county coroner.

He has served for many years as president of the Madison Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Hairston also has been active as finance chairman of the Illinois group of NAACP branches and as treasurer of the Madison County Economic Opportunity Commission.

Owner and operator of the Hairston Apartments in Venice, he is affiliated with Madison County senior citizens groups and a director of the Alcazar Home for the Aged.

He attended two colleges, and studied real estate appraisal at the University of Illinois. His past experience includes deputy coroner affiliations.

HUGH R. HAIRSTON

Hairston is a director of an alcoholic rehabilitation center and has been a Baptist deacon and chairman of trustees.

3 running in primary for Illinois Senate

Senator Sam M. Vadalabene (Democrat, Edwardsville) seeks re-election as state senator from the 56th District. He has held the post since 1970, after previously serving two terms in the Illinois House of Representatives.

"In my last campaign," Vadalabene says, "my supporters used the slogan, 'Sen. Sam stands for service.' In everything I have done in the General Assembly, I have tried to live up to that high standard. I think my record proves it."

"While I have been engaged in public service, I have gained a reputation for being a hard worker. As a full-time senator, I think that I have earned it."

"I have always considered it a privilege to serve the citizens of this area; I hope they will consider me worthy to continue as their senator."

"During the past term, I think my potential for effectiveness increased with experience and seniority. I would like to put this advantage to its fullest use in furthering the interests and aspirations of people of the 56th District."

"At all times, I have tried to let everyone know exactly where I stand. I respect everyone's right to disagree with the things I try to do, but I don't let that deter me from trying to get things done."

"This attitude has helped me in the General Assembly. No one thought we would even come close to victory on such things as the civic center or independence for Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville."

"Whether we were seeking safer rail crossings, more assistance to education, safer and more convenient roads and highways, the expansion of the docking and warehouse facilities of the Tri-City Port District or more jobs and economic improvement, I have tried in every way possible to prove that Sen. Sam still stands for service."

Currently, Sen. Vadalabene serves as chairman of the Executive Administration and Appointments Committee. He is a member of the following other committees: Appropriations; Pensions, Personnel and Veterans Affairs; and Transportation. He also is a member of the Agricultural Export Advisory Committee; the Legislative Audit Committee; the Illinois Bicentennial Committee, of which he is vice chairman.

Sen. Vadalabene serves as chairman of the Cities and Villages Municipal Problems Commission.

A member of the Bi-State Development District and Bi-State Development Agency Legislative Commission, he is chairman of the Legislative Advisory Commission to Southwestern Illinois Metropolitan Area Planning and assistant to the vice-chairman of the Motor Vehicle Laws Study Commission.

Vadalabene formerly served as an Edwardsville Township auditor and also served on the staffs of former State Auditor Michael J. Howlett and former State Superintendent of Public Instruction George T. Wilkins Sr.

A member of the Illinois Youth Commission neighborhood services program, Vadalabene also is a former member of the Edwardsville Park and Recreation Board and supervised that board's summer recreation program for four years.

He is a member of the Knights of Columbus, Moose Lodge, American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars and was named an honorary life member of the Edwardsville Kiwanis.

The present Vadalabene Park recreation and baseball-softball playing area in Edwardsville is named in honor of the senator, who led the effort to develop it into its present state.

Sen. Vadalabene also has served as chairman of the Madison County Heart Association fund drive and has been active in the Madison County Chapter of the March of Dimes and the Sabin Oral Vaccine Administration Committee in Madison County.

Born in Detroit in 1914, he attended St. Boniface School in Edwardsville.

He completed his elementary education at Sacred Heart School in Pana, and graduated from Pana Township High School.

He married the former Mary Lesko and they have raised five children in the Edwardsville community. He resides at 64 Circle Drive when not in Springfield for legislative duties.

After operating in Edwardsville for the past year and a half, this local growth parallels that seen across the country as the number of people beginning to practice the TM technique has risen from approximately 13,000 per month in early 1975 to nearly 40,000 per month late last year, Good said.

This lecture will be sponsored by International Meditation Society, a non-profit, educational service of World Plan Executive Council.

Granite City School District playing fields again will be available to private groups for baseball and soccer programs this summer, according to B. J. Davis, superintendent of schools.

Supt. Davis said requests to use the fields must include the schedule of dates and times needed and must be submitted to him in writing before Wednesday, March 10.

Requests may be mailed to the Board of Education office at 20th and Adams Streets.

Professor Glenn T. Wilson, a faculty member in the School of Business and Economics at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, is announcing his intention to seek the Republican nomination for the State Senate in the 56th District, which includes the Quad-Cities, Alton and Edwardsville.

Wilson, 36, describes himself as a moderate Republican "to the right of Chuck Percy and to the left of Phyllis Schlafly."

He has been active in the Republican Citizens Council of Madison County and is Republican committeeman in the Edwardsville 6th Precinct.

"We can no longer afford legislators like Sen. Sam Vadalabene," Wilson contends. "He is too good at spending money. In order to wheel and deal to get spending projects for this area, he has to vote away millions more for 'pork-barrel' projects in Chicago and elsewhere in the state."

"In Illinois' current financial situation, we are going to have great difficulty in financing the old programs to which we are committed, let alone undertake new spending programs."

"There are easy answers to our economic difficulties. The energy crisis, and the subsequent combination of inflation and recession, have hit hard—both at the state budget and at the personal budgets of Illinois taxpayers."

"If we are to avoid a tax increase, then we must weigh each expenditure program carefully and approve only those where the benefits considerably outweigh the costs."

"I have spoken out against the proposed Columbia-Waterloo airport, for instance, because it is based on ridiculously inflated estimates of future air traffic."

"The only exception I would make would be for a limited number of new programs that are desperately needed, such as construction of new prison capacity so that we can deal more effectively with the crime problem by keeping more criminals in jail for longer terms."

"This is an essential investment, because prisons are the weak link in the criminal justice system and the crime rate is getting out of hand."

Wilson was born in Sydney, Australia. He earned a science degree at the University of Sydney, and came to the U.S. at the age of 22 to study at the Graduate School of Industrial Administration at Carnegie-Mellon University in Pittsburgh.

After earning a master's and Ph.D. degree there, he taught at Michigan State University and then, from 1969 to now, at SIUE.

Wilson says, "The commission for the airport should be abolished or just reduced to a tiny staff. We're just wasting money on it."

"I have not investigated the costs for Alton locks and dams replacement fully enough to take a position for or against. The barge lines should be charged the costs of construction."

"If these costs are so high that the barges could no longer compete with the railroads, the new improvements should not be built.

"There are also environmental objections to the lock project; these are valid but, in my opinion, only minor and should be taken into account only if the economic factors pro and con are evenly balanced."

"Trucking firms should be free to offer service between any cities they wish, at any reasonable prices. Trucking is an inherently competitive industry, not a natural monopoly like railroads."

"Weight limits should be maintained and enforced, so that huge trucks do not short-sightedly tear up the roads."

"I am strongly opposed to plans to build a railroad mass transit system in St. Louis. This would just be a billion-dollar boondoggle."

"Commuter railroads and subways in places like New York, Boston and Chicago can't even cover their operating expenses, let alone pay back any part of their capital and interest cost. In San Francisco, the super-modern system has run into enormous difficulties and has far outstripped its original cost estimates," the candidate says.

"From what I have seen of it, the Bi-State Transit System is inefficiently run. There are very few passengers at the terminus at Edwardsville, and the bus routes twist and turn through East St. Louis. They never seem to have heard of the new freeways."

"It's performing a useful service to East St. Louis people, but the little-patronized routes should be dropped off. And it should pay its own way."

"Private entrepreneurs should be allowed to run bus service, if they think they can make a profit, on whatever routes they wish at whatever times they wish—and at whatever fares they want, free from bureaucratic interference."

"Congress should stop subsidizing Amtrak, and give it up as a bad investment. Its only value is as a backdrop when there is a bus strike or an airline strike. It's not worth it."

Gertraude Wittig of Edwardsville is a Republican candidate for the State Senate from the 56th Legislative District.

"I became a candidate so that the voters would have a choice," she said. "My concern is for government responsible and responsive to the people."

She is 47 years old and a professor of biology at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

She was born and raised in Germany, where she also obtained her doctoral degree. A naturalized citizen, she has lived and worked in the United States since 1968. Dr. Wittig carried out research in wiggett control at Berkeley, Calif., a Fulbright student and in research centers of the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Maryland and Oregon.

At SIUE, she obtained her first departmental funds for two undergraduate programs that are federally supported, and also directed these programs.

Some of her teaching has been in areas related to health and medicine.

In recent years, she has served extensively in professional, educational and women's organizations.

She is currently past president of the Central States Electron Microscopy Society, member of a board committee of the Illinois Education Association, and coordinator for higher education of the IEA Women's Caucus.

She says she has been "interested in administration and

Recycling program expanded

A new program designed to rejuvenate trash recycling in the Quad-Cities area has been initiated by Coordinated Youth Services, with the help of a grant from the office of Manpower Development in Edwardsville.

With the assistance of Dan Churovich, director of the Manpower program, and the Madison County Board and its chairman Nelson Hagauer, Coordinated Youth Services acquired the services of David Lehn to direct the community recycling program.

The primary goal of the program is to increase residents' participation in recycling solid waste with a long-term goal of creating a viable reclamation program which other communities could copy.

Lehn hopes to employ some of the area's handicapped citizens to work at the recycling center. An advisory council to assist Lehn and give the community recycling program proper government for a long time."

Her partisan involvement was "triggered after a Nov. 5 lobbying trip to Springfield." According to the candidate, "government by and for the people requires that a legislator obtain as much information about a bill as possible, consider all sides of the issue, encourage the people to participate in this process, and explain her vote to the constituents."

She concludes that "government must serve all the people."

direction is now being formed. Anyone interested in being on the committee should contact David Lehn at 876-2383 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays.

The community recycling center is located at Niedringhaus Avenue and Adams Street and will accept all glass containers, newspapers and cans.

Glass should be reasonably clean and free of metal caps or rings; newspapers should be bundled or placed in a shopping bag, and cans need to be clean, have the labels removed and be flattened, when possible.

"Recycling our trash benefits the community in many ways. The little time and effort it takes to recycle reduces solid waste while, at the same time, employs local youth to work at the reclamation site, Lehn said.

"The greatest benefit, however, is from the earnings. All profits from the recycling program go toward the purchase of shoes and underclothing for needy school children," he added.

Lehn said the CRP hopes to increase the number of sites throughout the Quad-Cities area, making recycling more accessible.

Lehn urged everyone to recycle. "Each person contributes at least 5.5 pounds of solid waste per day to the 360 million tons or more of reclaimable solid waste created annually," he noted.

"Recycling makes sense, since it requires far less energy—including electric power, oil and natural gas—to make new from the old, and in some cases, the savings are tremendous," he said.

"Recycle, help the community, and be part of a solution to keep us in harmony with nature," is one of the slogans of the center.
